THE TENTH DISTRICT.

Proceedings of the Campaign Convention. Kendall nominated by Acclamation. The Tenth Congressional District Democratic Convention, to nominate a candidate to succeed the late J. Wick Kendall as Congressman from the district, was held on the 4th inst. at Campion. The Convention assembled at 1 p. m., and was called to order by Hon. John E. Cooper, of Montgomery county, who made a brief speech. Hon. J. P. Salzer was made temporary Chairman, and J. S. White and W. M. Meeks were chosen Secretaries. The committee selected were as follows:

On Resolutions—J. H. Hasselrigg, J. Winn, J. W. York, J. D. Atkinson, W. M. Kendall, F. A. Hopkins, W. Smith, D. M. Hager and J. C. Lykins.

On Resolutions—D. D. Sublett, Rodney Haggard, B. F. Day, T. Y. Fitzpatrick, A. J. Ringo, T. J. Henry, C. B. Brooks, D. B. Redwine and W. L. Hatten. On Organization—Wm. Myhrle, C. O. Cardwell, R. S. Botten, J. M. Robinson, J. Evans, C. C. Turner, A. F. Byrd, M. T. Womack and W. B. LeMaster. There was the greatest harmony at the Convention, and when the reports of the committees had been adopted, a call of committee was taken up. When Floyd was called, Hon. T. Y. Fitzpatrick, in a neat speech, put in nomination the name of J. M. Kendall. The Hon. Rodney Haggard followed, giving Clark county, withdrawing the name of Joe M. Kendall. Hugh Biddell, of East, withdrew the name, and by acclamation Hon. W. B. Williams, of Estill, moved that Mr. Kendall's nomination be made unanimous. Judge Lisle followed him by declaring that his choice was Joe Kendall, whose nomination he heartily seconded. The Hon. Mr. Bowles and Hon. W. B. Williams also seconded the name, and by acclamation Mr. Kendall was declared the nominee. He was escorted to the stage and made a few remarks of thanks and appreciation.

On motion of J. D. Sublett, the Convention indorsed the Hon. John G. Carlisle as its choice for President. The following resolutions were passed by the Committee on Resolutions and unanimously adopted: Resolved, That in the death of the Hon. J. W. Kendall, Kentucky lost an able, honest and faithful public servant, his wife a kind and devoted husband, his children an indulgent and affectionate father, and the Democratic party one of its ablest advocates. Resolved, That we reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of the Democratic party, as enunciated by Jefferson and taught by Jackson. Resolved, That we pledge our undivided, sincere support to the nominee of this Convention. Resolved, That the Democratic papers of the Tenth Congressional District and the Courier-Journal are requested to publish the proceedings of this Convention.

From the returns received from the County Convention of the Tenth District, Mr. Joe M. Kendall, of Floyd county had a clear majority of the delegates uncontested, and was, we presume, nominated at Campion on the 4th inst. for Congress without opposition. He made a game fight all over the district, but his greatest victory was in carrying Montgomery county, though by a small margin, over Judge Lisle, of Clark. Mr. Kendall is a sterling Democrat, and a young man of much promise, and deserves the earnest support of every Democrat in the district, and with such support his majority will be at least 3,000 votes. We predict that the Republicans will organize and try to slip upon their opponents, and for this reason Mr. Kendall had a walk-over. Mr. John P. Salzer, of Morgan, presided, and Messrs. J. L. White, of Montgomery, and Wm. Meek, of Johnson, acted as Secretaries. Hon. T. Y. Fitzpatrick, of Floyd, nominated Mr. Kendall, and his nomination was seconded by Mr. Lisle, of Clark, Mr. Bolen, of Pike, Mr. Williams, of Estill, and others. The delegates from Montgomery speak in high terms of the treatment they received at the hands of the good people of Wolfe county.—Mt. Sterling Gazette.

Judge Lisle made a splendid race, but unfortunately did not get enough votes to win. Montgomery county showed her appreciation of the support we have so often given her sons by defeating our man, although he came within eleven votes of carrying the county. To our neighbor, Powell, we feel truly grateful, and will not forget her. We also have a warm place in our hearts for Lee and Estill which will not soon grow cold. Johnson and Breathitt counties—may their shadows never grow less—are also on our list of friends for the gallant stand they took, notwithstanding their vote went the other way.—Winchester Democrat.

The Campion Convention ended in a Democratic levee feast. Senator Haggard with twelve ladies, and a large company was followed by Bowles and Williams, Kendall being chosen unanimously. He will be elected by a big majority if the Republicans have the decency to put a candidate against him.—Winchester Democrat.

OVER THE WORLD IN A WEEK.

Eight cases of smallpox were discovered last week in New York City.

Alice Field, daughter of the millionaire, Cyrus W. Field, will be examined for lunacy.

George and Frank Esman were poisoned from eating wild parsnips at Sioux Falls, S. D.

Marietta (O.) on the 7th inst. celebrated the 10th anniversary of its existence as a town.

Whitelaw Reid, Minister to France, will be tendered a banquet by the Chamber of Commerce of New York.

A banana train was wrecked at Milan, Tenn., on the Illinois Central railroad, and the conductor and another man was killed.

W. G. Miller, bridge foreman for the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific Railroad, was set upon by toughs at Arendia, La., and badly used up.

Gen. E. W. Pearce, a well-known historian of 70 years, and Ida Estelle Gardiner, a school teacher of 27, were last week married at Freetown, Mass.

Wm. C. Miller, the moonshiner who killed a government officer in Pennsylvania recently, was last week captured and lodged in the Somerset jail.

The town of Hantington, W. Va., last week held its first election under the Australian ballot system, and the result was a decided victory for the Democrats.

Graduates to the number of thirty-four received diplomas at the Ohio Medical College, Cincinnati, one day last week. Quick made doctors make quick deaths.

John Tustman, a young farmer living near Madison, Ind., last week lost his wife. While John was in town she packed her effects and eloped with his hired man.

Another feud has broken out between the families of Frank Midland and J. Murphy in the mountains of East Tennessee, and Midland was shot from ambush last week.

A spring of water so strong in magnesian as to swallow up hatchets, saws and other steel tools placed at a distance of twelve feet from it, has been discovered near Egle, Ind.

Capt. Charles Rath, who hanged Mr. Suratt, of Washington, just after the war, and who has been mail clerk on the railroad between Grand Rapids and Jackson, Mich., was suddenly bereft of reason one day last week.

Michael Curry, a contractor, suicided near Pittston, Pa., by crawling into a hollow tree, placing three sticks of dynamite under his feet, and igniting the explosive. He stood erect, and the explosion tore the tree and man in bits.

H. G. Sparks, of Benton, Mo., has evidence sufficient to warrant the belief that he has in his employ the abducted and long lost Charley Ross, and circumstances in the case are so convincing that a relative of Ross is on his way to Benton to identify the missing boy.

High water in many streams in the South last week caused great destruction. Rome, Ga., was entirely shut off from railroad communication, and the surrounding country for miles submerged. At Mobile, Ala., no trains left the city for 48 hours. At Columbus, Miss., the destruction was great and several lives were lost.

The Confederate Remnant at New Orleans on the 7th inst. was attended by 10,000 people or more, among them being all the noted leaders living, viz: Senator Gordon, of Georgia; Senator Daniel, of Virginia; Gen. Kirby Smith, Gen. Cabell, Gen. Longstreet, Mrs. Jefferson Davis and Miss Winnie Davis are among the honored guests. The Cavalry Association met, and Gen. W. H. Jackson was elected President.

Emery M. Smith, of Harrison Township, Ind., had a fight a few days since from which he has barely recovered. While cutting into an oak tree on his farm, the axe he was wielding sunk to the handle into the rotten heart. Instantly there issued from the tree a roaring noise resembling electric steam. Mr. Smith thought he detected the fumes of gas, and applying a lighted match to the cavity, a blast shot forth, extending ten feet from the tree, and burned steadily for two hours. The occurrence was so sudden and mysterious as to put Mr. Smith and two companions to flight.

Successful Doctor. J. H. Goldsmith, who had such great success in the Grand Circuit last year with Pimlico and others writes: "I have given Quinn's Ointment a thorough trial, and I can truthfully say it is the best preparation for removing a Splinter or Curb that I have ever used." ### Preacher's Institute.

We desire to hold said Institute at Hazel Green, beginning August 8th and continuing through the week. Whether we have the Institute or not depends upon the preachers. It is for their benefit. If they will attend we will have it, if not we will not. We wish to find out as early as possible who and how many will attend. We ought to do this by the first of May. All the preachers who will attend let them send their names at once to Prof. Wm. H. Cord, Hazel Green, Wolfe County, Ky.

We shall endeavor to secure the services of Prof. J. W. McGarvey. We may have other help. It is desirable that the elders of the Churches as many as can also attend. They can be greatly helped. We also extend a cordial invitation to the preachers of other denominations. To know the incalculable benefit to be derived therefrom, one must attend or to confer with some one who attended two years ago at West Liberty. The preachers who see this will please speak to all their brother preachers about it and get them to drop a card at once to Bro. Cord.

We earnestly request that all the pastors of the secular press of Eastern Kentucky will copy this notice. Let us come together en masse and make our Institute a glorious success. All candidates for the ministry are also requested to attend.—J. M. Downing, in Hazel Green Academicist.

Rifle vs. Shotgun.

In a fight between Bland Read and Miller Bishop, at Old Rockhill, in the southern part of Barren county, a few days since, both men were shot, Read perhaps fatally. Read is a Constable in that precinct, and went to Rockhill to arrest a woman for unlawfully selling whiskey. Bishop came up to him with a rifle across his arm and Read asked him what he wanted, to which Bishop replied that it was none of his business. Read, not liking the response to his question, immediately raised a double-barreled shotgun with which he was armed, and snapped at Bishop. As he pulled the trigger of the second barrel, Bishop also threw his rifle at his shoulder and pulled the trigger, both weapons exploding simultaneously.

Read was shot in the left breast, the ball passing through the right side and coming out through his right shoulder. He is badly wounded. Bishop was not hurt much. Read's gun was charged with bird shot, and with these he peppered Bishop in the neck and face, making painful but not serious wounds. No arrests have been made.

Chronic constipation, with all its attendant evils, is cured by taking Ayer's Cathartic Pills. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Why Not Have One?

Can not the teachers and superintendents of schools in Eastern Kentucky hold an Eastern Kentucky Teachers' Association? Some time in the month of July would be suitable. It is not too late to arrange the time, place and program. We are sure incalculable benefit would be derived from such an Association. Can we not have an expression for or against the idea from the superintendents and teachers? Patrons and all friends of education would send a helping hand. Let the superintendents think of the movement, and present it to their teachers. Let the editors of Eastern Kentucky take the matter up, and speak of it through their papers. When we become aroused to the need of an Association, when we carefully consider the benefits to be obtained, when we appreciate the impetus it will give to all educational interests in our part of the State, we will not stand idly by and let the opportunity pass. Let us hear at once from teachers, superintendents and others. Send a postal to the Editor of THE ACADEMICIST, and we will ascertain what can be done.—Hazel Green Academicist.

A CONSISTENT RECORD.

The Democratic Party Has Steadily Opposed Protective Taxes.

The proposition that the democratic party shall abandon revenue reform and take to the woods is one of those preposterous suggestions that come only from men who are ignorant of political history or of the political position of Mr. Jefferson to Cleveland. If they could, and would not if they could, abandon revenue reform, or reverse the position of the party.

From the time of Jefferson to Cleveland the party has been consistent in its opposition to protective taxes. The declaration of independence was the formulation of a demand for free trade. The first democratic platform adopted by the party called republican to distinguish it from the federalist, came from a congressional caucus at Philadelphia in 1800, the year when Jefferson was first elected president. Its second resolution is as follows:

"Free commerce with all nations, political connection with none, and little or no diplomatic establishment."

In his address in his first annual message, declared: "Agriculture, manufactures, commerce and navigation, the four pillars of our prosperity, are most thriving when left free to individual enterprise and competition. It is only when no nation feared our strength or regarded our rights, every reasonable effort was made to develop our resources in order to make us independent of all nations. This was done in some cases by small import duties, such as now would be considered ruinous. Jefferson, Madison and Monroe ever manifested a disposition to encourage agriculture, manufactures, commerce and navigation, as the means of increasing our war resources, but Jefferson was particularly to say in 1805 that 'the remaining revenue on the consumption of foreign articles is paid chiefly by those who can afford to add foreign luxuries to domestic comforts.' In 1806, referring to certain duties, he insisted they be retained, 'because they are levied chiefly on luxuries.'"

The war of 1812 caused an increase of duties, interrupted and destroyed foreign commerce and called for war tariffs.

Then, as now, the beneficiaries of the war tariff were reluctant to surrender their war privileges, but, in 1813, Jackson, who was then the first consideration, and all interests should be equally favored. In his inaugural he said: "With regard to a proper selection of the subjects of import duties, I have no hesitation in saying that the spirit of equity, caution and compromise, in which the constitution was formed, requires that the great interests of agriculture, commerce and navigation should be equally favored, and that perhaps the only exception to this rule should consist in the peculiar encouragement of any product of either of them that may be found essential to our national independence."

In 1832, Jackson, in his veto of the bank bill, said that most of the difficulties surrounding the government were the result of the protection of the union came from the abandonment of the legitimate objects of government. "Many of our rich men," he said, "have not been content with equal protection, but have besought us to make them rich by acts of congress."

In 1832, in his annual message, he insisted that Americans might be willing for awhile to pay higher prices, in order to encourage the establishment of factories, but, at the same time, he emphatically repudiated the idea that such a policy was to be permanent. "But," he said, "for this purpose, it is precisely that which the tariff is designed for perpetual protection, has entered into the minds of but few of our statesmen. The most they have anticipated is a temporary and generally incidental protection, which they maintain has the effect to reduce the price, by domestic competition, below that of the foreign article."

Jackson, in his other state papers, was consistent in his opposition to all class legislation, denouncing every attempt to build up one interest at the expense of another, insisted on relief of such necessities of life as salt and coal from tariff taxation, and in his farewell address said: "The government has no power to raise a revenue or impose taxes except for the purposes enumerated in the constitution."

The vigorous intellect of Jackson, his determined character, his broad sympathies with the people, left their impress on the democratic party.

In 1848 the democratic convention met at Baltimore and adopted a platform declaring that "justice and sound policy forbid the federal government to foster one branch of industry to the detriment of another," and the fifth resolution was emphatic in the demand that "no more revenue ought to be raised than is required to defray the expenses of government."

In 1849 the fourth and fifth resolutions of 1848 were reaffirmed.

In 1848 the party platform declared that "the fruits of the great political struggle of 1844 have fulfilled the hopes of the democracy, and the fifth resolution is given to the cause of free trade by the repeal of the tariff of 1842, and the creation of the more equal, honest and productive tariff of 1845."

These principles were reaffirmed every four years until 1864.

Here is a record so simple, so direct, so consistent that no man need mistake it. From the beginning to the end the democratic party has been the opponent of the principles underlying the whole system of protection. On the other hand Hamilton, the federal party, the whig party, and now the republican party, have been its advocates and defenders.

And so it will be through all time. Should the democratic party abandon these principles, the people would abandon the democratic party.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

INVESTIGATING RAUM.

A Committee Appointed to Look After the Commissioner of Pensions.

A committee of the house has been appointed for the purpose of investigating Mr. Raum, whose little doubt as to the need of such investigation, but the committee should be allowed to extend its inquiries beyond the personal transactions of the pension commissioner. The private speculations of Raum have little to do with the great scandals that have made his administration notorious save as they may lead to conclusions after Raum's relations with those known in Washington as members of the pension ring. What enormous profits these pension sharks have made within a short time, the number of pensioners exceeds $300,000, and that this is to be increased to more than a round million within the year, it will be seen that something must be rotten in Denmark. A quarter of a century after the close of the war the pension list is to exceed in numbers the roll of the federal army at any one time. The bare statement is proof of frauds that are disgraced to honest pensioners and wickedly burdensome to the people.

The committee will discover in the course of their work that many veterans in Washington and throughout the country will aid them in uncovering some of the schemes by which the pension office has been disgraced. There is an organization of old veterans in Washington whose members are earnest in their determination to stop pension frauds before they shall have destroyed the entire system. To these old soldiers the committee may appeal with a certainty of valuable assistance.—Chicago Times.

HE IS INEVITABLE.

Harrison Is a Political Old Man of the Year.

The republican party would undoubtedly get rid of Harrison if it could. But it cannot. He is the only successful patronage machine ever organized in the country, for it represents both the radicals and the "Anchor-to-Windward" elements of the republican party. He has among his office holders and his supporters both Blaine and Elkins. He has Wanamaker to represent the godly and Raum to stand for pretorian "patronism," with Foster as go-between. The Wall Street money market represents the will and interests of every strong monopoly in the country.

Against the federal office holders this organized the republican party would stand, even were there nothing else to compel its action. But it is under even a stronger compulsion than that of the patronage machine. Harrison has burned the bridges behind it so that it cannot turn back from him. He has made a record that the platform must attempt to justify and on which he alone must stand. The party will be obliged to endorse the tax bill, the McKinley bill, the subsidy policy, the Sherman bullion storage bill, the pretorian system of pensions for the dishonorably discharged, the plundering of the surplus, the thousand million dollar appropriations, and all the other iniquities of the Harrison administration.

This means Harrison for a candidate. It means no one else. The republican party might have changed its course after its great defeat in 1890, but as it did not change it then it cannot change it now. And so it will re-nominate Benjamin Harrison and stand on his record.—St. Louis Republic.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

—The Texas republicans once more notify the country that they are "harmonious." The hope for republicans who couldn't be harmonious with 184,000 democratic plurality to make them so would be indeed foolish.—St. Louis Republic.

—Fortunately for a tax-ridden people the democratic majority in the house is paying due attention to both ends of the machine, trimming down the taxes and the time for stopping off extravagant and needless appropriations.—Boston Globe.

—President Harrison ought to get a new secretary of the treasury. If Mr. Foster is to be kept in the office without withholding from day laborers in government employ the wages they have earned, he would seem to be a victim of republican methods of the tax-cutting to such a degree as to render him practically useless.—St. Louis Republic.

—The very best evidence that the United States treasury is out of money is that the treasury must borrow money if it is to continue to construct highways in the District of Columbia. The proposition is to issue two percent bonds, and yet when this administration comes to the end there was a surplus in the treasury of $100,000,000.—N. Y. World.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

The Wood Nymph.

A Beautiful Insect Which Is Said to Thrive on Grape Vines.

This has often been mentioned as an enemy to grape vines, usually in connection with Allypta octomaculata, an allied genus, on account of the very close resemblance between the larva of the two moths.

The moth of the Eudryas grata is among the most beautiful of the Lepidoptera, with its pleasing contrasts of white, soft brown, purplish, green and yellow. Perfect specimens—unless bred—are seldom seen, however, as it is a night flyer.

The eggs and larva are also very pretty, the former being delicately sculptured and the latter ornamented with alternating bands of bluish and red orange, the bluish bands marked off and the orange bands dotted with black.

This food plant of the larva is usually grape, varied occasionally by ampelopsis or Virginia creeper.

It is seldom abundant enough to do much injury, though, according to Dr. Lintner, Allypta is a serious pest while Eudryas is rare. Here, in Iowa, Allypta is very seldom met with while Eudryas is comparatively common and in favorable seasons might become formidable. Owing to its size and conspicuous coloring the larva are readily seen and can be destroyed on the few vines usually found in the farmer's garden, if they become too numerous. They have the habit of dropping to the ground when approached, the earth to pupate, or, if pieces of board, wood, sticks or trellis are in the vicinity they often gnaw into them a cavity large enough to admit half of the body, covering the outer half with sawdust stuck together with a gummy secretion.

Packard mentions this wood-boring habit as occasional, but in my experience it has been more common than the usual (Packard) method of entering the ground. Especially is this true of confined larvae, which in nearly every instance appeared restless and uneasy until provided with pieces of wood in which to transform. They remain in their snug wood and sawdust or earthen abodes until the following June, when the beautiful moths emerge to lay eggs for another generation.—Prairie Farmer.

What Farmers Ought to Do.

The remedy for the farmer seems to be to reduce the cost of production as much as possible, by striving to produce the greatest amount with the least labor, and to carefully watch the demands of the market for such products as it is not oversupplied with, and learn how to produce them of the best quality at the least cost. With this, let him abandon the trying to grow such crops as are not adapted to his soil, or as he does not understand the management of, and thus avoid helping to fill the market with the inferior products which must be sold at unremunerative prices. Let him diversify his crops more by striving to produce as much as possible of that which he will need for home consumption, and if a favorable season gives a surplus to sell, look upon that as a profit, no matter how small the price at which it sells. That which he grows himself and uses in his own family will be just as profitable at a low price as if it could have been sold for twice as much.—Colman's Rural World.

Good Cows Are Big Eaters.

A cow giving a big mess of milk has an enormous appetite, and it is an important point to feed her so that she will keep this big appetite. To do this we must keep a close watch and see that she is not overfed. If a cow that is in full milk is poor, and shows her ribs plainly, don't try to get her fat; we are not feeding for fat in the cow, but for fat in the milk. A good cow will put most of her feed in the milk, and may look as if she did not get enough to eat, but that is all right so long as she keeps in good health.—Indiana Farmer.

One Suitable for Holding Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs.

Our illustration represents a barn capable of holding 15 horses, 50 head of cattle and 30 sheep, with room enough for at least 40 tons of hay. The end of the building is represented as left open to show the arrangements of the stalls, etc. The horses occupy the central portion at one end, in two rows, with a passageway between the rows, the apartment for the sheep being the other end of the central space. The cattle occupy the sides, each row facing toward the horses on that side. Their stalls are 13 feet deep. The floor of the cattle stalls slants to a manure ditch behind the cattle, and behind this is the passageway. The cattle may be fastened with stanchions or in any other approved way. The horse stalls have a dirt floor. The barn is 75 feet long, 45 feet wide, 15 or 20 feet high in the eaves. The upper part is used as a haymow.

Cultivation of Forests.

A forest is like any other crop in its growth and development. After it reaches maturity it begins to decay, and if not interfered with, growth and decay will just about balance each other, and no progress or increase of crop will follow. The true way to cut the timber as fast as it is fit, thinning exactly the right distance apart as may be, permitting the young timber to come as fast as the natural timber is removed. It will take many years to get a forest in just the right condition; but when once fairly started, no other known crop has been made to yield so large a profit.—Farm, Field and Stockman.

CONY, hay and idleness (or moderate exercise) will bring the horses out in the spring fat, sleek and handsome, but soft, short-winded and liable to colic. Better sell half the corn and buy bran and feed them as much as possible on bran, oats and clean, bright wheat straw, with a little corn and hay for variety, and give them all the exercise possible. It is unkindness to keep a horse in idleness.

ABOUT EARLY SEEDING.

Importance of Getting the Seed Into Soil Under Favorable Conditions.

One of the principal advantages in getting the spring crops in early is that the plants, having a better opportunity to get well established, are in a much better condition to withstand the hot, drier weather of summer. Plants that are started in the early stages of growth never fully recover, and seed sown under unfavorable conditions will nearly always send up a weak unhealthy plant, whose defects after treatment will entirely overcome.

With nearly all spring crops, especially in the field, earliness is quite an item in securing the best growth and yield, yet it is a very good economy to risk a slow, poor germination of the seed and an untimely start to grow in order to plant early. Allowing seed to remain in the ground or planting under unfavorable conditions, so that they germinate slowly, causes more or less loss of vitality that, when the best growth and yield are desired, it is best to avoid. Under present conditions if a fair profit is realized a good yield is necessary and in many cases a fair yield can be made to return a fair profit while a light yield will be made at a positive loss. Hence it is important to take every precaution to secure the best growth and yield in order to lessen the cost and increase the profits.

These things are important: Good seed carefully planted in thoroughly prepared soil so as to insure a quick, vigorous germination and growth and a good even stand. A failure in either of these respects will affect the yield. As a start it is best to take every precaution to plant under the most favorable conditions as possible, and with such crops as require it, give thorough cultivation.

In order to lessen the necessity for attempting to work the soil wet or to plant under unfavorable conditions the best plan is to make all of the preparations possible in advance. Get everything ready so that when the soil is in condition to work the seeding may be pushed along rapidly. It is only in exceptional cases that it will pay to attempt to work the soil wet. It will usually always pay to delay the work a few days until the soil is sufficiently dry. With good drainage in the spring one or two days will make a very considerable difference. One working of the soil when wet will be injurious, that a whole season's work afterwards will fail entirely to remove the effect; planting the seed with the soil not in good condition will seriously affect the growth and yield of the crop.

Sow or plant as early as possible, but have the soil in a good tilth, and get the seed into the soil under favorable conditions. This is the first step towards securing a good yield, and much depends upon the way it is done.—St. Louis Republic.

One Suitable for Holding Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs.

The end of the building is represented as left open to show the arrangements of the stalls, etc. The horses occupy the central portion at one end, in two rows, with a passageway between the rows, the apartment for the sheep being the other end of the central space. The cattle occupy the sides, each row facing toward the horses on that side. Their stalls are 13 feet deep. The floor of the cattle stalls slants to a manure ditch behind the cattle, and behind this is the passageway. The cattle may be fastened with stanchions or in any other approved way. The horse stalls have a dirt floor. The barn is 75 feet long, 45 feet wide, 15 or 20 feet high in the eaves. The upper part is used as a haymow.

Cultivation of Forests.

A forest is like any other crop in its growth and development. After it reaches maturity it begins to decay, and if not interfered with, growth and decay will just about balance each other, and no progress or increase of crop will follow. The true way to cut the timber as fast as it is fit, thinning exactly the right distance apart as may be, permitting the young timber to come as fast as the natural timber is removed. It will take many years to get a forest in just the right condition; but when once fairly started, no other known crop has been made to yield so large a profit.—Farm, Field and Stockman.

CONY, hay and idleness (or moderate exercise) will bring the horses out in the spring fat, sleek and handsome, but soft, short-winded and liable to colic. Better sell half the corn and buy bran and feed them as much as possible on bran, oats and clean, bright wheat straw, with a little corn and hay for variety, and give them all the exercise possible. It is unkindness to keep a horse in idleness.

HAZEL GREEN HERALD.

SPENCER COOPER, Editor.

HAZEL GREEN, KY.:
FRIDAY, April 15, 1892.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Congress—Tenth District,
JOSEPH M. KENDALL, of Floyd.

BEFORE another issue of our paper the election to be held for Congressman in this district will have been held, the date being Thursday, April 21st, 1892, whereas our paper will be dated on Friday, April 22. That Mr. Kendall will have no opposition for the place is now a settled fact, as the committee having the nomination in charge, have decided to put no Republican candidate in for the short term. This is as it should be, and it shows the esteem in which Joseph M. Kendall is held by the people of Eastern Kentucky without regard to politics. It will, therefore, be an easy victory for him—in race horse talk a walk over—but nevertheless every Democrat should go to the polls and vote on that day for Joseph M. Kendall for Congress. A full vote of the party will encourage him in his efforts on our behalf, and beside, this being a Presidential year, it will aid in keeping the organization of the party intact. Let every Democrat do his duty on that day, and he will be the better prepared for the coming conflicts. Let us give Joe Kendall the full vote of the party—every man.

In the Convention to be held to nominate delegates to the Chicago Convention, none but Cleveland men should be selected, and we wish it distinctly understood that THE HERALD has that kind of a feeling in the matter. Our friend, John P. Salyer, of West Liberty, has been mentioned as a suitable delegate from this district, and if he can go into the Convention with Cleveland credentials, we are for him, and do not now know of a more suitable man for the place. We are, however, not for a Hill man under any circumstances. We have never interviewed Mr. Salyer as to his feelings in the matter, and if he be a Cleveland man we are for him. If he be a Hill man we are for him. That's all there is of it.

FOUR-FIFTHS of the Democrats in the four quarters of these United States are for Grover Cleveland for President first, last and all the time, and any attempt to defeat the will of the people will result disastrously to the Democratic party. County Conventions, District Conventions and the State Convention should see to it that none but Cleveland men are mustered for guard mount at Chicago, and if this is done we will have him nominated. Once nominated he will sweep the country from Portland Maine, to the Pacific slope, and the Democratic party will be able to record the grandest victory it has ever achieved.

There is a growing impression, says the Georgetown Times, that Mr. Cleveland will be nominated by the Chicago Convention before New York is reached in the call of States. If this condition of things should be brought about the responsibility of his election will rest with New York, and Senator Hill has given a promise to the public that the vote of New York will be cast for the Chicago nominee.

WHAT, if anything, has this section of our State done toward making an exhibit at the World's Fair? The benefits to be derived from a display of our mineral wealth at that place would be almost incalculable, and those having the matter in charge in the several counties should attend to it at once.

This is a busy season just to hold an election, but every Democrat should go to the polls on Thursday, April 21st, and record his vote for Joseph M. Kendall for Congress. He can then hurry back to his plow and work with a better heart.

Go to the polls on Thursday, the 21st inst., and vote for Joseph M. Kendall.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 8, '92.

Senator Wolcott proved himself a veritable bull in the political china-shop by a speech he made on Senator Morgan's silver resolutions. He was particularly severe on Mr. Harrison and Mr. Cleveland. Of the former he said: "It is apparent that the party in power will, with negative unanimity, renominate the present magnetic Executive; not because he is the choice of any considerable body of his party, but because since the letter of the retirement of the great Secretary who holds his party bound by ties of deepest affection and regard, no man of greater stature than the present incumbent has been found willing to stand." Of Mr. Cleveland he said: "Because of the blow that has struck silver aside, it seems equally manifest that the Democratic party will present its apostle of tariff reform, whose vision has no other issue, and who desires to be again consecrated to public office."

Fear of what the third party may capture in the South and Northwest is a perpetual nightmare with the politicians of both the old parties, and the private information received since the side tracking of the free coinage bill in the House is not calculated to add to their tranquility. The Democrats, however, have the best of it, as it would only throw the election of President into the House should the third party carry several States.

The House spent the greater part of this week in passing the free wool bill, and if the Republicans had been inclined to keep up the filibustering with which they consumed the entire day, it never could have been passed without the adoption of a cloture rule by the Democratic majority. The present rules of the House are a regular "snap" for those inclined to filibuster.

Senator Peffer's bill "to create a fund for the payment of pensions and for setting our army of laborers at work on extensive public improvements; for removing the strongest incentive to crime among the poor and vice among the rich, and for protecting the American from the influx of undue alien competition," did not meet the approval of the Senate Finance Committee, which has made an unfavorable report thereon. The same fate was dealt out to Senator Call's bill prohibiting national banks receiving or paying interest on deposits made by national banks; to Senator Kyle's bill to repeal the law conferring the authority upon the Secretary of the Treasury to anticipate the interest upon the public debt, and to Senator George's resolution instructing the committee to report a bill providing for the issuing and keeping in circulation of legal-tender notes to the extent of $10 per capita.

Representative Clover, of Kansas, who is a member of the House Committee on Indian Affairs, gave that Committee some plain talk this week. He said: "We have given more time to hearing the women of Philadelphia, who never saw an Indian, and to the officers of the Indian Rights Association and kindred organizations than we have to any other class of people. Some of these people want to take the heart out of the land that is to be thrown open to settlement in the Cherokee country, so as to put it in the hands of the education of the Indian. There are hundreds of young Americans—lads just growing into manhood—who are far more in need of education than the Indians, and they would make better use of their opportunities. I think we ought to look after these young men, and while the education of the Indian may be a good thing, I do not think we ought to deprive our own people of land needed for homes, in order that a few Indians may be educated."

The passage by the House, under a suspension of the rules, of the most radical anti-Chinese bill ever introduced in Congress—shutting out all Chinese not officially connected with the legation of that country—has caused much discussion. An overwhelming majority believe the enactment of such a law, but there is a respectable minority, composed of men of all shades of political belief, who believe that Congress should not deliberately violate existing treaties with China, as all agree that this bill does. Nevertheless it is believed that the bill will become a law, as the politicians on both sides are shy about voting against the bill on the eve of a Presidential campaign, and the same reason will probably cause President Harrison to sign the bill after it passes the Senate. It may result in the severance by China of diplomatic relations with the United States, intimations to that effect having come directly from the Chinese Minister here.

Representative Hitt, of Illinois, will probably go to France as Minister Whitehead's successor. He is one of the best informed men in the country on diplomatic affairs, having been Assistant Secretary of State, Secretary of the American Legation at Paris, and Chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs. The details of the reciprocity treaty which Mr. Reid negotiated with France will not be made public until it is ratified by the French Chamber of Deputies.

Crippled Bill Lawson, who lives this side of Maytown, is quite a poor man and a good citizen, had the misfortune Tuesday night to lose his house and all his household goods. His wife and three little children were left with only the scanty clothing that covered their bodies, and Mr. Lawson being a cripple and a poor man, Arberry Swango undertook to raise something for the unfortunate ones. Mr. Swango was here Wednesday and succeeded in getting a few donations from our citizens, but people do not remember the line and the golden rule, "Do unto others as ye would wish them to do unto you" and as a consequence do not give with the liberality that the Lord loves to see. Sometimes it is not charity to give to those who ask, but here is a case which appeals to the hearts of all good people, and we hope that all of the citizens of this community who have not already done so, will give of their means. If it is but little that you can spare, spare it, and with that little send along a blessing. The old, old story that the widow gave her mite was one of the sweetest that was told to our Savior, and with smiles he will to-day look upon all who help the helpless. Do not wait until a more convenient season, but do today that which all of God's people should stand ready at all times to do. Any money donations or other things for these unfortunate people may be left at THE HERALD office or the store of Rose & Jones, and they will be promptly delivered.

STATE NEWS.

The frost Saturday night killed the peach crop in all parts of the State.

Rev. Cave, formerly a preacher in Lexington, committed suicide in St. Louis, Mo., Sunday night.

The Shelby County Confederate Veterans Association held a meeting Monday and elected officers.

The big horse show at Lexington Monday brought out a million dollars worth of equine excellence.

Gov. Brown refused a pardon to C. C. Moore, in all at Paris for libel of the Paris Circular Church.

The World's Fair bill passed by the General Assembly is not yet a law, but will be this week. It appropriates $100,000.

The Girl is the name of a new publication at Louisville, with Col. Bill Sterritt as editor. It is devoted to humor, satire and revenge.

Thos. Scott, a pioneer, and the oldest citizen in Lewis county, died suddenly Sunday at his home at Enterprise, of a paralytic stroke.

A man named Craig was fined $900 last week for violation of the liquor law at Berry, a small place in Harrison county. He was fined $5 and costs in 52 cents.

Monday was court day at Lexington, and stock of all kinds sold well. Horses brought from $40 to $75, plows; mules from $130 to $155, and milk cows sold at $40 to $45.

At a dance at Buchanan's Saturday night, Jim Mahone hit Peter Reynolds on the back of the head with the pole of an axe. Reynolds could not recover. His assailant escaped.

The Big Sandy flouring mill at Catlettsburg burned Sunday night, and C. M. Coy, the miller, was burned to death while trying to save the books. The loss is $80,000, with no insurance.

The grand opening of the Four Seasons Hotel at Middlesboro took place on the 12th inst. About 150 guests have arrived from New York, Eastern States, and a large number are booked for this week.

Twenty years ago, while feeding hogs, T. J. Tandy, of Christian county, lost a fine gold watch. His son a few days since found it buried in the earth near the spot, wound it up and started it to running.

Mrs. Reuben Young, of Owensboro, was burned to death Sunday, at her home. The lady was standing with her back to the fire feeding a young baby, when her clothing caught fire, and in an instant she was enveloped in flames. As she was no one present to help her, she was burned to a crisp, death resulting in a few minutes.

J. B. Lamb, a prominent farmer of Call county, found a live snake, 15 inches long, in a sack of grass seed he was emptying. The seed had been shipped from the North, and the snake had certainly been confined in the sack ever since it was put up last summer, as the sack was tied up, and there was no hole in it through which the serpent could have crawled. When freed it began to crawl away, but was killed.

Vote for Joseph M. Kendall.

The smallest attempt at stealing of which we have heard in a life time came to light on Thursday morning last. Joe Kash, of this place, purchased of J. T. Day & Co., a bacon ham which they had bought from some countryman, and upon eating it discovered that it was loaded. Cuts or mice had eaten out nearly all of the heart of the ham, and the party who sold it had filled in this with chunks of old bacon and salt so that the ham had the appearance of being all right. The man or woman who purchased the ham in this case made a mistake in choosing the vocation of a farmer. He or she, as the case may be, should be in some city running a "fence" for thieves or steering a lulu game some kind. The talent wasted upon the ham, if properly applied in another field of labor, would soon lead its possessor to wealth and most probably to a long term in the penitentiary. The mistakes some people make in applying their talents are appalling, but there is yet perhaps time for the perpetrator of this "joke" to turn his life to a channel of cleverer profit.

Election Thursday, April 21.

G. T. Hughes, general manager for Hitchcock's Analysis of the Holy Bible, and his estimable wife and interesting little boys, left Monday for Campton, where they will remain indefinitely. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes and their two children have been sojourners in our village since early in the winter, and so endeared themselves to the people of the place that all were loth to see them leave. They are citizens who would honor any town. Mr. Hughes being a most thorough gentleman and his wife a lady of refinement and rare accomplishments. What we have lost these good citizens is sorely realized by the people of Campton, who gain so much, and our well wishers, along with all of our people, go with them.

Letter from a Kentuckian in Oklahoma.

ELBORO, OKLA., April 7, '92.

I have just received many letters from you, and I take this method of complying through the columns of your valuable paper. I don't see how any home can be happy without the old old HERALD. Since I have made my home in Texas, I greet it with each week as one of my dearest friends. I am glad to say that all of our Kentucky crowd are well satisfied. There has been no rain here for quite a while. Wheat and oats are looking very well. It was thought that our crops were killed, but it is a mistake. Papa's wheat and oats are looking fine.

I had the pleasure of attending a debating society last Saturday night and church on the following Sunday. On next Saturday night our champion, Charles Kings, will be in the debate, and we venture the assertion that he will hold his own with the rest of the boys.

I have got my eye on an old bachelor just across from where we live, but I don't know whether he is put up with his wife or not. Nevertheless I live in hope, and papa is in better hopes than I am.

Please don't let that blue-eyed, curly-haired fellow of mine marry until I come back to Kentucky bye-and-bye. Respectfully,

ANNE D. INGRAM.
